

CROSS-BORDER LEGAL INSTITUTION DESIGN

法

The Program for leading graduate school

NAGOYA UNIVERSITY Quick Tour in Our Program 2014

The objective of this Program is to produce Asia-literate professionals who can design legal institutions for cross-border transplantation. Students will develop flexible perspectives that allow them to understand and compare diverse societies, and learn how to offer innovative yet highly practical solutions for the legal challenges facing the region.

法 (hou, ホウ) is constituted by 法 and 鷹. 鷹 is a god animal, which can distinguish good and evil and make a fair judgement. This is one of basic personalities for a leader and a lawyer need.

OUR ACTIVITIES

Presentation of Comparative Joint Research

Cooperation with other leading program

Legal study trip in Hokkaido University

1

Comparative Joint Research

The aim of Joint Research course is to train students from different jurisdictions working in a team and exploring the problematic issue in Asia, and introducing a practical project by means of comparative analysis approach in the societal, legal, and political perspectives.

Brain storming for comparative joint research

2

Project Management

It is very important for graduate school students learning the skill of project management to plan their research.

In this class, we learn the skill how to make a reasonable project and budget management.

Photo with three experts of project management

Diani Nandasiri, LLM, Sri Lanka

Leading program has opened up opportunities for me to explore the society in legal, political and cultural perspectives across borders with the ultimate goal of contributing for a better society.

Hung Yi Chen, PhD, Taiwan

The leading program not only provides me many useful courses for doing legal research from different perspectives but also trains me how to become a leader. It is really a good decision for me to pursue my PhD study in this program.

Wan Chen Ho, LLM, Taiwan

I never knew how big the world is until I joined the Leading Program. The Program offers comprehensive courses and supportive academic resources to students. The greatest choice I made in my life is to study at Leading Program in Japan!

Pawee Jenweeranon, LLM, Thailand

The Program has taught me how to properly conduct legal research studies as well as to concern about legal transplantation and solve the remaining problem in developing countries.

Taisuke Amano, LLM, Japan

Life in this program is full of joy. Every student has a different cultural background and that is our greatest advantage. We encourage each other and learn from each other everyday, not just as classmates but as great friends.